Business Case and Productization of 5G (especially industrial use cases) has been challenging to say the least. Standardization of a new technology takes a long time and we as an industry shouldn't make the same mistake again.

I was invited by IEEE to join the academia and R&D community to share operator's view on 6G technology; my key points were Sustainability, Time to Market, and Business Case.

Sustainability

We in Hutchison take pride in our work on Sustainability and I took the opportunity to share our collaboration with Huawei on AI to saving energy consumption.

6G must be sustainable natively rather than leaving it to the equipment manufacturers to implement propriety solutions post standardization.

I also shared that it's more desirable to have advanced mathematics and AI to assist with digital signal processing to improve link budget as compared to building more antenna elements.

Time to Market

We as a industry needs to be more agile in rolling out services. OTT are able to rollout services at a different level of speed. 5G SA being cloud native is a right direction and I hope that we can deploy 6G as microservices to speed up deployment.

Business Case

Monetization of new services such as ISAC needs wider collaboration. An example would be working with GSMA's Open Gateway to allow fast monetization.

As it's International Women's Day we're shining a light on two of our colleagues, Barbara and Loretta. Both have enjoyed careers within CK Hutchison for more than 20 years so we asked them how it's been! Enjoy reading their responses as we celebrate all the women in our business and in our lives. Back in Rome after an exciting week at #MWC2024!

It was fun to meet friends, customers, discussing the future of tech and the shaping forces of our present and future.

The real highlight? Celebrating the partnership between Hutchison Group and the award for Amdocs Subscription Marketplace.

In a world where consumers are always seeking more and the demand for enriched experiences never ceases, Hutchison chose to adapt and meet these evolving demands, aiming to deliver the best experience possible to their customers.

This partnership marks a promising step towards delivering growth and success, and it has been a privilege for me to lead this path. Beyond technology, it's the people we do business with who truly matter.

Thank you Hutchison for choosing Amdocs for your new future!
